Unicode Text Search is a simple tool that allows you to search for Unicode text within local hard drives. The program allows you to search the text in certain file types by using wildcard characters to define the search. The interface of the program provides access to all the search parameters and enables you to select the drive and the folder that you want to search. The program displays the search result on the form of a list of filenames. You have the possibility to select a result and open its properties. There are several options to sort the list by name or last access date. You can also set the sorting by date or file size. The program doesn't show information about the file's properties, but it lists the size, the last access date and the time when the file was last accessed. You can also delete or move the unwanted files. There's the possibility to open the form of an individual file or a folder. There you have the possibility to check if a file's encoding is Unicode, the word count and the line count. You can also change a file's extension or its case sensitivity. Unicode Text Search allows you to search for files that have an Unicode encoding, i.e. it can search for Chinese, Japanese and Korean files. What's new in this version

What's New In?

Unicode Text Search is a simple tool that allows you to search for Unicode text within local hard drives. The program allows you to search the text in certain file types by using wildcard characters to define the search. The interface of the program provides access to all the search parameters and enables you to select the drive and the folder that you want to search. The results are presented in a simple, easy to view format and the program has a great feature that enables you to download the search results in different file formats. The program is pretty simple to use with no advanced settings or menus. Unicode Text Search is very easy to use, you simply have to select the search type, enter the character you want to search for, specify the location of the file within the drives and specify the file type. If you do not have to search through thousands of files the program will work perfectly fine, but if you have to search through thousands of files the program will take a lot of time to complete the search due to the large amount of files. The only bug I have seen with the software so far is that when you switch back to the main menu the program will not stop searching and will not give you a message that it is still searching. The program starts searching again when you close the main menu and the program was able to stop on its own when it was performing a search for a file for a long time. Maybe the software could handle a larger volume of files in a better way, or it could perform an itemized search on each file, but either way I think that the program is still a nice tool and easy to use. My favorite features of the program:

- The feature that enables you to download the search results in different file formats.
- The great way to display the results in a simple, easy to view format.
- The great feature that enables you to save the search results to a file and search for multiple searches at the same time.
- The fact that you can search on multiple drives at the same time with one mouse click.
- The feature that allows you to get help and information from the software in an easy way.
- The huge amount of wildcard characters, case sensitivity and file types that Unicode Text Search is compatible with.
- The feature that you can select several items that you want to search.
- The fact that you can share Unicode Text Search with your friends.
- The feature that allows you to perform multiple searches with one mouse click.
